

Why do people join Labor?

"I joined Labor because I love working with people, I love making a difference and I hate saying goodbye - we say goodbye too often in the Territory. That's why I want to make the Territory even better, so more people call the place I love home. Only labor as the party of big ideas, of strong community, of fairness can do that."

Michael Gunner Territory Labor Leader

"I joined the Labor Party when I was 17 because my family instilled in me a sense of fairness, of social justice and the value of work and education to everyone's life opportunities."

Bill Shorten, Federal Labor Leader

"I am committed to a thinking party, a party of reform and progress, built on the principle that ordinary people of goodwill working together can achieve positive change – that's why I joined Labor."

Tanya Plibersek, Deputy Federal Labor Leader

Choose the Labor Team

By voting in elections to select state and federal Labor candidates, you will choose the Labor team for upcoming elections.

Build the Labor Plan

By participating in Labor policy forums and contributing to policy development, you will build the plan Labor will take to elections

Join the Labor Community

Becoming a Labor member brings you into the Labor community, you will be able to work alongside community leaders and industry experts while developing Labor policy and campaigning to make it happen.

Stay Updated

Membership news and updates will keep you informed about the big issues and breaking news moments before anyone else knows.

A Rewarding Experience

Once you have become a member you're not required to participate in party events, but membership is more rewarding when you actively engage in regular activities and events.

A Place to Learn

The Labor Party is a great place to learn about different aspects of politics and policy. Most people have policy areas they are interested in and no one is an expert in all policy areas. Come along and have your say, your opinion matters.

In Solidarity
